ENCLOSURE

29 April 1996

Robert M. Bryant
Assistant Director National Security Division
Federal Bureau of Investigation
9th and Pennsylvania Ave., NW
Washington, D.C.

Dear Bear, Bear,

Ah, you say, a voice from the past. Well, not to sound like one of the "old" guys, but I wanted to give you my impression on one aspect of the press that I have noted since I retired. So, let me wipe the drool from my mouth, and give you my thoughts.

b7C

There has been much interest in the activities of the Bureau recently not only about [redacted] but also [redacted] and more specifically the information from the release of the VENONA information. Academics are suddenly finding out that maybe the Bureau wasn't that far off the mark after all in the 1940's and 1950's. I heard a lot of talk, in this regard, as a result of the Baltimore Sun's series on NSA. All of which leads me to raise the issue of the Bureau hiring a professional historian or a group of retirees/contractors to ensure that the FBI's leading role in counterintelligence is not lost.

More importantly, the chance to interview participants will be lost in a relatively short time and the Bureau will never have a history of its accomplishments for its own personnel. Since the Bureau is case driven, much of the needed information may well be lost in the archives since no one will know which cases contain important information. [redacted] b3.

- This issue has been discussed in detail over the years. I think it is now time that something is done. We have a proud record of accomplishment. It should not be lost to ourselves, our people or to history.

Best regards,

cc: J.F. Lewis
